Invading Generals Blast Big Green, 33-7 In Penalty-Ridden Cary Field Encounter

Even a brief appearance in the lineup by ace quarterback Charlie Sumner failed to save the William and Mary Indians from a 33-7 shellacking at the hands of the Generals of Washington and Lee before a sparse crowd of 3300 people at Cary Field last Saturday. It was the invaders' third straight victory in the month of November.

The boys from Lexington turned the game into a rout in the space of eight minutes in the third quarter. Carl Bolt whose name is a personification of his play, provided the straw that broke the Big Green's back when he took the kickoff following the Tribe's lone score up the West sideline 92 yards for a touchdown.

The rest of the first half was spent with neither team going anywhere but backward. The defensive play in this frame became particularly aggressive, which is a nice way of saying our boys got tired of being penalized for W&L throwing punches.

The advent of the second half saw Sumner at quarterback. It was evident that he couldn't run on his bad ankle, but even this failed to prevent him from throwing often and effectively. Sumner eventually kicked dead on the invaders' four yard line.

Lindsey's return punt went out of bounds on the Indian 49 and from this spot Sumner fired first a 23 yard pass and then a 27 yard scoring toss to Shorty Herrmann. Herrmann made beautiful receptions on both occasions, spinning right out of the grasp of two tacklers on his latter grab.

After Quimby Hines had added the conversion, Bolt made his aforementioned jaunt. Sam Scott, the last man with a chance to catch him, was erased by a beautiful downfield block by Ciro Barcellona.

by End Harold Sturgill and from the W&L 46 the Generals needed just 16 plays to make it 19-7 with Bolt slithering over from the four yard line on second down.

The Lexington aggregation was back in touchdown territory just four plays later when Herrmann's punt from the William and Mary 25 was blocked by tackle Jay Heckman and picked up by the same culprit for the score.

The next time that the Tribe got possession Al Grieco fumbled on second down and the Blue and White recovered at the Big Green 36. Flanders raced 32 yards around left end to the three yard line where Lindy Cox caught him from behind. It took Bolt two tries to tally this time and Lindsey once again converted.

With the score 33-7 against them the Indians started to roll downfield and twice threatened to score. Once they reached the three yard line before one of the illustrious men in white clouded the issue with an "illegal procedure" foul.

Injuries to the top two quarterbacks seriously handicapped the Tribe. Sumner completed four out of five passes and showed tremendous courage in the face of a painful injury.

The visitors' line, led by such standouts as Captain Bill McHenry and Tackles Heckman and Bill Lafferty, until he was hurt, stopped the Indians impressively on the ground and the absence of a passing arm definitely hurt the home team's chances. Halfbacks Bolt and Flanders combined with Bowman to keep the referees from completely stealing the spotlight.

Bill Marfizo, who has played fine ball for the Tribe all year, re-injured a vertebrae in his back during the second half, and had to be helped off the field.

Indians Hope To Snap Back Saturday Against Highly Rated BU Aggregation

After absorbing an unexpected shellacking at the hands of Washington and Lee last week, the Big Green will undoubtedly be out for revenge against the Terriers of Boston University this Saturday in the last clash of the season for both squads.

Despite the loss of the fabled Harry "Greek" Agganis, the Beantowners will bring a fine team with them. Boston, under the veteran coaching of Aldo "Buff" Donelli, has had a mediocre season to date, winning only four games against three losses and a tie.

Impressive Wins

The Terriers have defeated Brandeis, Lehigh, Villanova and Temple by very impressive scores. They were trounced by Penn State and Holy Cross, but only lost to Marquette by one point, 7-6. This decision is very significant because Cincinnati lost to this same Marquette team by over 20 points. Syracuse provided the opposition for the tie game which resulted in a 14-14 stalemate.

William and Mary has faced the New Englanders four times since the series was inaugurated in 1947. The count is now even with each squad having taken a pair. Last year the Indians lost a close one in the last few minutes, 33-28, after having come from behind to go ahead by one point, 28-27. Agganis was the spoiler as he threw the winning touchdown pass.

Most Depth

Boston will have the most depth that the Tribe has seen this year. They are loaded with 43 men, including 25 returning lettermen, and are five deep in every position but center.

If the Braves are to stop the Scarlet and White, they will have to bottle up their diminutive quarterback, John Nunziato. This senior from Somerville, Mass., is only five feet five inches tall and weighs but 148 pounds; certainly not very much for a college grid star.

However, "Nunzie" is a very competent signal caller and a great competitor. Also at the position of quarterback is Tom Gastall, the boy who caught the pass from Agganis that beat W&M last year. He is an excellent passer and should keep the Indian secondary on its toes when he is in the lineup.

Another Terrier who will make life miserable for the Braves is halfback Don DeFeudis. Along with his side-kick at the other halfback slot, Bill Taylor, he will provide a stern test for the Big Green forward wall. DeFeudis led the Beantowners in scoring with nine touchdowns last year.

Rounding out the backfield are fullbacks Sam Pino and Mario Moriello. Pino is returning to the Terrier lineup after spending two years in the Marine Corps. He was their top groundgainer in 1950.

Veteran Line

Coach Donelli has virtually an all veteran line returning to duty on the gridiron. Outstanding on the end posts are bull-like Jim Meredith, ace New England defensive end last year, and little Marco "Scooter" Landon. Landon recovered 14 fumbles of the entire Boston total of 26 which tied Nevada for the nation's lead in that department.

Five lettermen are available for the tackle position and only one of the five weighs under 205 pounds. Captain Ray Cataloni along with Mike Mavropoulos will give the Bostonians plenty of defensive strength at the guard posts. The position of center will be capably handled by John Pappas, a good candidate for sectional honors.

Frosh Basketballers Scrimmage And Drill For Oncoming Game

With their first encounter of the new basketball season less than three weeks away, the Freshman basketball team intensified their practice drills and scrimmages last week as they sought to iron out the kinks and weaknesses so prevalent in the early part of the year.

Especially effective in one of the practice games in which the freshmen were downed by only around ten points was little Freddy Weinman, all-state and most valuable player in Ohio.

Fred's sharp passing and fast driving, the all round play of William "Fumbo" Ouseley, and everyone else on the team showed the effects of the able coaching being given them by Coach Jerry Harris.

Long Drills

Besides game competition with the varsity the team went through hours of painstaking drill last week. With not set plays to worry about the Paposes drilled on pickoff and fast cutting plays.

Walt Knick and Jim Bowen are the two pivot men to whom the ball is fed on lightning cuts off the pivot. Both men have excellent hook shots, and each is an able passer.

Another boy who has looked particularly outstanding is tall and lean Charlie Morrow. Charlie has the ability of being able to shoot well with a great variety of shots. His layups are devastating in their accuracy.

The squad now numbers twelve, including Walt Knick, William Ouseley, Chuck Morrow, Freddy Weinman, Dick Calvert, Johnny Bain, Eddy Schaefer, Del Wilson, Jim Bowen, Donald Engleken, Harrison Warren and Jim Kaplan. The team, with its fine spirit and ability, promises to be one of the finest William and Mary has produced in years.

INDIAN OF THE WEEK

Walter "Shorty" Herrman richly deserves the Flat Hat Indian Of The Week award, as he was one of the few bright lights in an otherwise dismal afternoon last Saturday. Besides scoring the only Big Green touchdown early in the third period, Herrman also deserves recognition as a steady ground gainer.

His pass interception in the third quarter temporarily halted the rampaging Generals, as he aptly demonstrated his defensive skill. The 24 year old Herrmann stands 5'10" and tips the scales at 170 pounds. The Warwick halfback is a member of Kappa Sigma social fraternity.

Honorable mentions are awarded to Charlie Sumner for his exceptional punting and all-around play despite a painful ankle, Chet Waksmunski for his usual outstanding line work, and dependable "Bullet" Bowman, the leading W&M ground gainer, who ran 88 yards despite ineffective blocking support.

Journalistic Vacation

Due to Thanksgiving vacation, the FLAT HAT will not be published next week. The next issue of the paper will appear on December 8. There will be staff meetings tonight and next Tuesday as scheduled.

Hard Practices On Gymnasium Court Usher Arrival Of Basketball Season

With the football season drawing to a close, the sound of basketballs bouncing on the hardwood of Blow Gymnasium brings one to the realization that the 1953-54 basketball season is here again.

The Tribe hoopsters open their season on December 5 against Hampden-Sydney in Farmville and begin their home campaign three days later against Maryland's Terrapins on December 8.

While not too much is known about Hampden-Sydney's team this year, they have a reputation of being an extremely tough foe, especially on their home floor.

Maryland is rated as one of the top teams of the new Atlantic Coast Conference. The one drawback to their being a serious threat to North Carolina State is their lack of height.

Shue Great

This lack of height is made up for in part by Gene Shue, a definite All-American candidate this year. Indian fans will remember Shue's performance against the Tribe last season as he led the Terps to a win over William and Mary in Blow Gym. The Terrapins also won the encounter played at College Park.

In addition to Shue, the Terps have several returning lettermen plus some excellent sophomores. These lettermen include six foot four inch Bob Kessler, Bob Everett, Bob Dilworth and Ralph Grieco.

Coach Bud Millikan of the Terps played under Hank Iba of Oklahoma A&M and hence his teams feature a slow-moving deliberate offense and a tight defense which is designed to confuse teams employing the fast-break such as William and Mary does. His success is illustrated by the Terps' 13-4 conference record and 15-8 overall slate last season.

Coach Baird's hoopsters are going through the final stages of practice. They have been scrimmaging nearby service teams and have looked pretty good in spets.

Boyd Baird

A present guess at the starting team would be John Mahoney and Chick Cornell at the forwards, Howie Bollerman at center and Tam Stubbs and Monk Knight at the guards. This is by no means definite. Mahoney has been sidelined for the past week with an ankle injury, but that should be healed long before the start of the season.
